IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week an effort was being made to reopen the Otis Library to the public through the taking up of subscriptions. A total of $293 had been contributed up to that time. The foundation of the courthouse was nearing completion but the superstructure was not to be started until the spring months. Contracts of The Bulletin files of 1870 follow:

Monday, Nov. 21, 1870—William T. Chamberlain of this city has invented an engine to be operated by atmospheric pressure, applicable to marine, locomotive and stationary engines. The main feature of the invention is an apparatus for keeping up the supply of air in the air tank to make up for that which enters the cylinders to work the engine. Mr. Chamberlain also the inventor of a new tank motor.

For the benefit of the few who are interested in learning what progress is being made with the proposed subscription to secure the reopening of the Otis Library for public use we present the list as it stands at present. The following is the list of subscribers: William A. Buckingham, $100; Charles Johnson, $100; Rev. Mr. A. Aiken, $10; S. Gardner, $10; William A. Aiken, $10; Miss Gertrude May, $10; Dr. A. B. Hall, $10; A. W. Prentice, $10; Warren Williams, $10; R. M. Haven, $5; S. R. Parlin, $5; Joseph Selden, $5; W. H. W. Campbell, $5; G. A. Jones, Jr., $5; total $293.

Complaint is made that Central Wharf and the bridges are insufficiently lighted by the street lamps and that at least two others should be placed there to make the passage safe.

Tuesday, Nov. 22, 1870: Harry M. Cook, freight brakeman on the Norwich and Worcester railroad, had the middle finger on his right hand so badly crushed while coupling cars Saturday that amputation was necessary.

The receipts of the fair given by Sedgwick Post last week are about one thousand dollars.

The weather continues monotonously pleasant. At noon yesterday the thermometer indicated forty-one degrees.

Wednesday, Nov. 23, 1870—The schooner E. A. Conklin, sunk at the coal wharf some time ago, on which Mr. Fuller has been engaged, was yesterday righted, a diver descending to the bed of the river and removing a shoal on which she rested. Her cargo has been partially discharged.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Avery D. Wheeler on Cliff street was entered Tuesday night and a large quantity of provisions abstracted. It was the work of a burglar.

Charles C. Cobb, of Hartford spent Wednesday night at G. B. Dimon's. Mr. and Mrs. Milo Davoll, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Davoll and children spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyman in Columbia.

Miss Georgianna Flint, Chief of Police Daniel Killourey and Mrs. Killourey of Williamstown were entertained Thanksgiving day by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Jones.

The mothers in this school district were invited Wednesday afternoon to a little entertainment given by the children. Thursday morning the teacher, Miss Rogers, went to her home in Longmeadow, Mass., for the Thanksgiving recess.

The first snow storm of the season came Thursday but was not so severe as to prevent the usual family gatherings for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Payson motored to Hartford Thanksgiving morning, spending the day with Mrs. Payson's sister, Mrs. Earl James, returning in the evening.

Edmund P. Johnson of Norwich was the guest of his sister, Mrs. A. S. Peckham, over Sunday last week.
